The video ran successfully and the movie was fully playable in my DVD player. I then saved the.avi file to the desktop, renamed it to video1.avi and tried to convert it to mp4 using Aiseesoft 6.3. When I did this, I got an error message saying there were no subtitles for the movie. I then manually added the subtitles by dragging them from the top menu into the video player.

At this point the movie is playable in the player but without the subtitles. Is there a way to save the movie with the subtitles without having to manually add them to the movie after converting? A: I have found a solution to this problem. I used Youtube to download the.srt file that is available for this movie. I then opened it in Notepad++ and deleted all of the white space and spaces in the text file. This way, I was left with only the movie and the subtitles. Then, I used the following command in a batch file: `ffmpeg -i video1.avi -c:a copy -bsf:a lavfi -lavfi lavfi.channels_drop=2 -vf subtitles=subtitles.srt output.mp4` Author: admin
